Child Care Resources, Neptune

CDA Content Area: 6

Judi Pack, Instructor

Welcome to our library! This is a day for directors to visit our library, peruse the materials, and borrow what is interesting to you. If you email Judi Pack ahead of time, she will work to find the materials/topics you need and have them ready. We will be on hand to guide and make suggestions. Need something in particular? Judi's email address is: jpack@ccrnj.org.

Learning All the Time

November 19, 2007

Child Care Resources, Neptune

CDA Content Areas: 2, 8

Lynda Sheridan, Instructor

In this workshop, we will explore ways to integrate many areas of learning through every day routines. Math, literacy, and transitions, as well as social and emotional "skills" will be included in the discussion.

Preventing Behavior Problems

November 29, 2007

Child Care Resources, Neptune

CDA Content Areas: 3, 8

Judi Pack, Instructor

So many problems with children's behavior can be minimized or avoided by preventative measures. In this workshop, we will explore ways to do just that, while emphasizing the child's emotional/social development in the early years.

My Scribbles Curriculum and the Development of Early Writing Experiences with Young Children

December 6, 2007

Child Care Resources, Neptune

CDA Content Areas: 2, 7, 8

Asha Tekriwal, Instructor

Asha Tekriwal will describe a "Scribbles" curriculum that she uses with her three year old children from the first day of school. Asha will provide slides and video to show how the children's early writing develops through playful scribbles, drawing, storytelling/story acting and symbol making. This workshop is appropriate for teachers of 2½ through 6 year old children.

Biting: Why Do Young Children Bite?

December 11, 2007

Autism

January 09, 2008

Child Care Resources, Neptune

CDA Content Areas: 3,2

Gail Lazarus, Instructor

Presented by SPAN. Autism presents itself in many different ways. You will learn what to look for on the Autism Continuum and how to talk to parents about it. A discussion of environmental structuring and how it helps lessen certain behaviors will also be presented. Participants will leave with their own "little bag of techniques" to use with these most interesting children.

Exchanging Stories

January 14, 2008

Children of the King, Long Branch

CDA Content Areas: 2, 3, 4, 7

Linda Gaita and Pat Moss, Instructors

In this workshop two preschool teachers will describe how they began a story exchange between their two classrooms—one in Red Bank and one in Keyport. Using the Storytelling/Story Acting Process, the two teachers and their children developed a collaboration and friendship. As an added bonus it has become a wonderful way to meet the NJ Language Arts standards and make parents very happy!

Yoga for Children

January 23, 2008

Child Care Resources, Neptune

CDA Content Areas: 1, 2, 3

Pat Dunphy, Instructor

Yoga, creative movement and music stimulate young minds and bodies along the paths of all the intelligences. Children experience spatial and temporal concepts through movement in new and fun ways. They gain social awareness in a safe group environment where they have ample opportunity for support and success. Foremost, children have a wonderful medium through which they may begin to focus and self regulate emotionally. These practices are simple, easy and quick, yet the effects are grand. Please bring a mat or towel.

OK, We Know There Are Developmental Delays, Now What?

February 7, 2008

Utilizing Book Arts Techniques for Displaying Children's Work

February 11, 2008

Child Care Resources, Neptune

CDA Content Areas: 2, 7

Kim Cornell, Instructor

Displaying children's work makes their learning visible while communicating to them, and others, that their efforts and ideas are valued. The basic techniques of cutting, creasing, and folding typically used in Book Arts, transform paper from a flat material to a three-dimensional structure. The book-like structures can become interesting and appealing ways to display and exhibit children's work.
